- (e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

6. Claims 33-34, 39, and 49 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by OrdaCard which discloses:

Art Unit: 3653

(re: cl 33) An ID card personalization device comprising: a card print mechanism (L2), a network and adapter (L1 & L2-4), web client (L13);
(re: cl 34) web browser subscribed to data for web client (L3);
(re: cl 39) data subscription services (L3, enrollment)
(re: cl 49) web server for serving data (L 13).

7. Claims 33-34, 39, and 49 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Provost which discloses:

(re: cl 33) An ID card personalization device comprising: a card print mechanism (106), a network and adapter (c5 L 37-38), web client (c5 L 15; c5 L 29-40);
(re: cl 34) web browser subscribed to data for web client (c 14 L39-53);
(re: cl 39) data subscription services (c5 L 29-40);
(re: cl 49) web server for serving data (c5 L 29-40;102).

8. Claims 33, and 49 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by

Watanabe. Watanabe discloses:

(re: cl 33) An ID card personalization device comprising: a card print mechanism (c2 L 49-53) a network and adapter (c4 L 27-43), web client (39);
(re: cl 49) web server for serving data (38).

9. Claims 33 and 49 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by

D'Entremont et al. which discloses:

(re: cl 33) An ID card personalization device comprising: a card print mechanism (c 6 L 7-36), a network and adapter (c7 L 8-17), web client (22);

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

10. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 3653

11. Claims 33-36, 39, and 49 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over OrdaCard in view of Knowlton '692, with OrdaCard disclosing the elements previously discusse.

Knowlton '692 discloses the elements not inherently disclosed by OrdaCard of:

(re: cl 35) web page containing links to information (c11 L 14-36);
(re: cl 36) links are selected from the group: html and xml (c 11 L 14-36).

It would have been obvious at the time of the invention for OrdaCard to use web pages containing links so as to allow wide-based and disparate customers the opportunity to place orders from remote locations and it would have been obvious to use a universally used common language as HTML to permit those divers customers the opportunity to place orders remotely as taught by Knowlton '692 and come up with the instant invention. Knowlton '692 also teaches web clients, web servers, network adapters, browsers, subscription services taught by the base reference.

12. Claims 33-36, 39, and 49 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Provost in view of Knowlton '692, with Provost disclosing the elements previously discussed and further disclosing:

Response to Arguments

13. The applicant's arguments have been fully considered but they are unpersuasive in overcoming the rejections but for applicant's browser arguments concerning claim 34 pertaining to Watanabe.

Applicant alleges OrdaCard is lacking a card print mechanism. Ordacad uses an Indigo offset digital printer in the remote Internet-networked printing of photo ID cards Client. The Web client, as claimed, software is explicitly taught by OrdaCard. If applicant now elects a preference for a narrower definition of client, he should amend around the reference. Applicant asserts the installation of server software fails to teach a server. The Office disagrees as installation of server software comprises a configuring of the software onto the server. Enrollment to the remote serves constitutes subscribing.

(re) Provost, the web "clients"(c5 L 15) network connected (c5 L 37-38) to the host server 102, network adapter a plurality of components qualifying in at least some capacity within the broad concept of a network adapter are found such as the modem, "network connection".

(Re) Watanabe, the client once connected, the client becomes a part of the system.

(Re: D'Entremonte) client is applicability in id card personalization device. The purpose of the unit is for drivers licenses, military ID cards, welfare cards-all forms of ID cards.

(Re) Knowlton—applicant concedes the Knowlton obviates the secondary the elements positions rise and fall with the base claims as discussed above.
